SECTION A. STUDY METHODOLOGY

Sampling Frame Construction

The sampling frame was designed to encompass the Jewish population across the Greater Los Angeles area including Los Angeles, the South Bay, and the San Fernando and Conejo valleys.

The sampling frame was constructed from two main sets of data sources: (1) combined, de-duplicated membership lists from more than 60 Greater Los Angeles Jewish organizations and (2) an extract from the U.S. Postal Service Computerized Delivery Sequence File (CDSF) to ensure broad coverage of the Jewish community in Greater Los Angeles.

Both sets of data sources were used for the main sample. To be eligible for the main sample, a household needed to have a valid mailing address. Main sample households were eligible to be contacted by mail, phone, or email for recruitment for the survey. In addition, a supplemental sample contacted by email only was developed using only organization list records not included in the main sample and that had email addresses available on file.

Organization List Frame

In addition to utilizing databases available from JFGLA, the study team contacted a wide variety of organizations in the community and asked them to share their membership lists for inclusion in the study. More than 60 additional organizations participated representing a broad cross-section of the community, including synagogues, day schools, early childhood centers, social service agencies, and youth organizations.

The study team used a deterministic record linkage model to identify and remove households appearing on multiple lists. Likely business addresses were removed based upon information from U.S. Postal Service CDSF, and names, mailing addresses, and contact information were cleaned across all files. Records were considered matches if they shared two or more of the following: exact name, exact address, exact phone number, and exact email. Records were also considered matches if they shared fuzzy matched names or addresses along with exact matched values from the other contact information fields. Fuzzy matches were determined using the stringdist function from the stringdist package. A pair of strings was considered a fuzzy match if their distance was less than 1 as calculated by the optimal string alignment algorithm, a modification of the Levenshtein distance that allows for transpositions of adjacent characters.¹

Within each group of matched records, the record with the most frequent address information was kept in the frame, while the others were dropped. Groups containing more than two last names or more than two addresses were not counted as matches. Records that loosely matched, such as those that had matching names, unit numbers, and fuzzy matched emails, were deduplicated manually.

There were 228,368 households on the organization list frame with mailing addresses available that were eligible for the main sample. An additional 90,824 records had email addresses available but no mailing addresses. These households were eligible for the supplemental email sample, but not the main sample.

Address-Based Frame

To assure broad coverage of the Jewish community across Greater Los Angeles, the study additionally conducted address-based sampling (ABS) from the aforementioned U.S. Postal Service CDSF. All addresses from the organization list frame were removed from the address-based frame. Households on the address-based frame were designated as either likely Jewish or not based on applying a predictive model with available vendor data for a first-stage sample, and different strata were formed for households predicted and not predicted as likely Jewish. Details of the methodology are described in the following section on sample design.²

Sample Design

A stratified sample design was employed for both portions of the frame to ensure representation of different population subgroups, to increase the likelihood of reaching Jewish households, and to assure broad coverage of the Greater Los Angeles Jewish community. The study also aimed to support estimation for six regions of Greater Los Angeles: Central/Metro/Mid, East Valley, North County Valleys, South Bay, West Valley, and Westside.

Organization List Sample Design

The organization list frame grouped lists and records within lists into strata, both to increase the likelihood of reaching specific subgroups within the Greater Los Angeles community and to obtain sufficient numbers of completed interviews to support estimation for different subgroups. The following describes the strata, with households that could be classified as belonging to multiple demographic groups assigned to the first stratum in the list for which they were classified:

- Likely Israeli, including households from lists likely to include Israeli households;
- Likely Persian, including households from lists likely to include Persian households;
- Likely Russian, including households from lists likely to include Russian-speaking households;
- Israeli names, including households with surnames likely to be Israeli (excluding generic distinctive Jewish names);
- Persian names, including households with surnames likely to be Persian;
- Russian names, including households with first names likely to be Russian;
- Likely LGBTQ, including households from lists likely to include LGBTQ individuals;

In Big Data Meets Survey Science: A Collection of Innovative Methods (Craig Hill, Paul Biemer, Trent Buskirk, Lilli Japec, Antje Kirchner, Stas Kolenikov, and Lars Lyberg, eds.) p. 537-557 Hoboken, NJ: Wiley.

- Likely nonwhite names, including households with likely nonwhite surnames according to U.S. Census Bureau data³;
- Likely young families to reach households likely having children ages 0 to 4;
- Other families to reach households likely having children aged 5 to 17;
- Likely young adults, including households likely to have residents aged 18 to 35;
- Other adults from lists likely to have high eligibility (very likely to be Jewish) for the study;
- Other adults from lists with moderate likelihood of eligibility for the study; and
- Other adults from lists with lower likelihood of eligibility for the study.

Households were assigned to a sampling stratum based upon region and assignment to one of the above fourteen groups. To assure an even distribution of the sample across geographic areas in Greater Los Angeles, the study team employed systematic sampling⁴ to sort the frame within these sampling strata by region, zip code, block, street name, and street number and then sampling at regular intervals within strata.

Table A1 shows stratum sizes and number of cases sample by stratum within the organization list frame. The stratum sizes reflect number of households with mailing addresses available who were eligible for the main sample as well as cases with only email addresses available who were eligible for the supplemental sample. The sample sizes for the main sample are shown as well as the sample size for the supplemental sample contacted by email only. Note that for select lists, households were selected for the supplemental sample with certainty if an email address was available and the households was not selected for the main sample.

Address-Based Sample Design

Address-based sampling⁵ was conducted using a stratified sample design employed from the CDSF portion of the frame. The stratification scheme was based (1) classifying census block groups by the estimated prevalence of Jewish households into high, medium, low, and very low density of Jewish households; and (2) employing a predictive model to determine households' likelihood of having a Jewish adult.

First, the study team developed a measure related to Jewish density at the census block group-level. The study team chose census block groups as a small geographic unit for this as block groups typically designed by the U.S. Census Bureau to have between 600 and 3,000 residents on average. The resulting measures were developed by combining three input block group-level measures:

(1) the percentage of households in the block group on the de-duplicated organization list frame,
 (2) the percentage of households in the block group identified by a vendor as likely Jewish, and
 (3) the percentage of households with persons with likely Jewish surnames. A principal component analysis was conducted of the three measures, and the first principal component was taken as a correlate of Jewish density. Block groups were ranked by the resulting Jewish density measure and then grouped into four categories of likely Jewish density: high, medium, low, and very low. The very low group corresponded with census block groups that had low measures of Jewish density for all three available measures.

^aTo be eligible for the main sample, households had to have a valid Greater Los Angeles address on the sample frame.

^bSupplemental sample cases were selected among cases with email addresses but no mailing addresses available from the sampling frame, with the exception of a few select lists for which households not selected for the main sample were selected with certainty for the supplemental sample if an email address was available.

Households were additionally stratified based on classification from a predictive model as likely Jewish or not. For the address-based portion of the sample, NORC selected a first-stage sample of records from the CDSF stratified by the block group measure of Jewish density from among high, medium, and low Jewish density block groups. Households were matched with a large set of variables available from a vendor as well a block group-level data from the 2020 U.S. Census Bureau Planning

Database.⁶ The team then used gradient boosted machines⁷ to estimate for each adult from the household the likelihood of the household having at least one Jewish adult using more than 1,200 variables across the data sources. Adults in each household were assigned a propensity score for likelihood of being a Jewish household, and those with an adult with a propensity score of at least 43.2% were designated as likely Jewish. Among 171,223 households selected for the first-stage sample, 6,870 were predicted as likely Jewish.

The address-based sample was ultimately stratified based on the combination of block group Jewish density classification and classification as predicted Jewish or not, with higher sampling rates for households predicted as Jewish and in higher density block groups. Due to the large number of cases needing to be sampled to reach Jewish households in the low and very low block groups, the study team only sampled households in the low Jewish density block groups that were predicted as likely Jewish and did sample households in the very low Jewish density block groups. With the concentration of the population in specific geographic areas as well as the population coverage from organization lists and application of the predictive model, the study team estimates that the sample design covered 98.4% of Jewish households in Greater Los Angeles.

As for the organization list sample design, systematic sampling was used to draw an evenly distributed sample across Greater Los Angeles within the combination of classification of predicted as likely Jewish or not, block group Jewish density classification, and region.

Sample Releases

Sample for the study was released in two different waves to gauge the cooperation with the survey and to release the amount of sample needed to achieve target numbers of completes overall and to support estimates for key groups. The first wave started in early June 2021 sampled 50,792 main sample households and all 12,699 households in the supplemental sample. The second wave started in late July and sampled an additional 5,989 households for the main sample from the organization list sample frame, due to these strata not attaining anticipated survey participation rates in the first release.

Survey Instrument and Data Collection

The survey instrument was designed in collaboration with JFGLA and informed by the input of community members. The questions were crafted to minimize potential bias and any burden on respondents. Where possible, questions, language, and definitions were adopted from previously published Jewish community survey questionnaires to support comparability of estimates to other communities, while adapting many questions for the content needs for the Greater Los Angeles community.

The survey was designed and programmed for two modes: web and Computer Assisted Telephone Interview (CATI), with CATI interviews conducted by NORC telephone interviewers trained in the content of the questionnaire. Respondents had the option to complete both web and telephone interviews over multiple sessions.

The questionnaire was divided into two parts, a screener to determine eligibility for the survey and the survey itself for all respondents who screened in. The screener section was asked of all respondents to determine eligibility. Any household in the sample was considered eligible if it contained at least one adult aged 18 or older who lived in Greater Los Angeles for at least part of the year and considered himself or herself to be Jewish.

The screener portion had a Spanish response option for both web and CATI. The main survey was available in English only.

Out of 3,012 completed main sample interviews, 2,731 were completed by web, 274 were completed using CATI, and 7 abbreviated interviews were conducted over the phone by CMJS staff in foreign languages (5 in Farsi, 2 in Russian) with responses entered by CMJS in the web instrument.

The web version of the survey typically took 20 to 35 minutes to complete with a median of 27 minutes. Phone interviews typically took 40 to 60 minutes to complete with a median of 51 minutes.

Sample Recruitment

Data collection ran from June 9 to September 9, 2021. Main sample members were contacted using differing materials based upon whether they were sampled from the organization list frame or the address-based frame.

The organization list sample was contacted using materials branded as “Study of Jewish LA.” As these households were affiliated with Greater Los Angeles Jewish organizations, the study team identified the purpose of the study as a Jewish community study sponsored by JFGLA to encourage participation. Respondents were mailed an initial invitation letter with an access code to take the survey on the web and with information on the option to call NORC to complete the survey with a phone interviewer as well as to contact CMJS for foreign language interviews in Farsi or Russian.

The letter was mailed with an FAQ card with information on the study. Sample members in the first sample release were mailed a $2 bill with their initial invitation letter as an incentive. To alert these sample members as to the survey invitation with the $2 bill in their invitation letter, a pre-notification postcard was mailed for the first sample release a few days before the invitation letter was mailed. Further, an initial invitation email was sent to be timed with the arrival of the first letter with the link and access code to take the survey on the web as well as the phone number to request a phone interview. One week after mailing the letter, a thank you/reminder postcard was sent to respondents. For the first sample release, a second letter was sent to nonrespondents about one week after the mailing of the thank you/reminder postcard. Throughout the data collection period, reminder emails were sent every one to two weeks until the end of the study period, varying language to recruit respondents. NORC phone interviewers also made a reminder phone call to each nonresponding household and left a voicemail message if possible to invite pending sample members for phone interviews.

The address-based sample was contacted using materials branded as “Los Angeles Speaks!” that discussed surveying sample members about issues facing Greater Los Angeles residents. The initial invitation letter included a $2 bill as an incentive, an FAQ card, and a link and access code for taking the survey on the web, as well as information for calling NORC to schedule a phone interview. The letter was two-sided with English on one side and Spanish on another side. To alert respondents as to the survey invitation and the $2 bill in their invitation letter, respondents were mailed a pre-notification postcard a few days before the invitation letter was mailed. The invitation letter was followed by a thank you/reminder postcard mailed one week later and a second letter was mailed a week after that. No emails were sent to the address-based sample. NORC interviewers also made a reminder phone call to each nonresponding household and left a voicemail message if possible.

The supplemental sample from the organization list frame received similar emails to the main sample from the same frame but were not mailed letters nor received phone call reminders.

Survey Weighting

Survey weights were developed to support estimation. The survey weighting process incorporated the following steps for household-level weights:

1. Base weights that reflect the sample design and probabilities of selection;
2. Adjustment for resolution of address and for nonresponse to the screener;
3. Raking adjustments to control totals that included demographic data on the full population from the American Community Survey and demographic estimates on the Jewish by religion population from Brandeis University’s American Jewish Population Project; and data on synagogue membership, day school enrollment, Jewish part-time school enrollment, Jewish preschool enrollment, donations to JFGLA, and PJ Library subscriptions;
4. Adjustment for nonresponse to the main interview among screened in households;
5. Trimming and final raking to reduce the influence of large survey weights on estimates and align the final weights with data on the Greater Los Angeles Jewish community.

The above process produced the final household-level weight for estimates of all Jewish households in Greater Los Angeles. Weights for estimates of all adults living in these households and for all Jewish adults, intended for analyses of characteristics of the specific adults in each household responding to the survey, were produced by applying an additional raking process. This raking was designed so that estimates based on either household-level weights or respondent-level weights are closely aligned for key estimates.

The weighting process was conducted twice, once for the main sample alone and once for the full sample (combined main and supplemental samples). Thus, six survey weights were developed in total, with two sets of the three survey weights.

The following describes the details of each step of the weighting process.

Household-Level Base Weight

The base weight was calculated to adjust for the probability of being included in the sample. Specifically, for household i , the base weight was calculated as:

$$w_{1i} = \frac{1}{\pi_i},$$

where π_i is the probability of a household being selected for the sample, which for the main sample was calculated as the fraction of households sampled in the stratum/region combination to the total number of households in the stratum and region.

There were two versions of the base weights calculated for the main and full samples reflecting the differences in eligibility and sampling probabilities. To be eligible for the main sample, a mailing address must be available for the household. For the supplemental email sample, an email address must be available.

The main sample base weight was determined based on the number of households with mailing addresses available in the stratum. Households with a mailing address were eligible for the main sample, while households with only an email address available were available for the supplemental sample. A small number of lists were selected with certainty for the supplemental sample if they were not selected for the main sample and had an email address available. The full sample base weight was calculated differently in three scenarios: (1) If a mailing address was available the full sample base weight was set equal to the main sample base weight. (2) If a household had only an email address available, the full sample base weight was based on the probability of selection for the supplemental sample. (3) If a household had an email address available and was from one or a few select lists that were selected with certainty for the supplemental sample if not selected for the main sample (regardless of availability of a mailing address), the full sample base weight was set equal to 1.

Adjustment for Resolution of Address and Screener Nonresponse

Not all households sampled are occupied and therefore eligible to take the screener. In addition, some households sampled from the organization list frame were confirmed to live outside Greater Los Angeles and therefore also not eligible for the screener. Further, there was nonresponse among households eligible to complete the screener. The weighting procedure conducted an adjustment for resolution of the address and screener nonresponse in one step.

This adjustment was conducted within cells defined by the sampling strata and the availability of an email address. The sampling strata reflect different source lists for the frame, different demographic groups and kinds of engagement with the Jewish community, and geographic areas within Greater Los Angeles. These aspects led the strata to capture meaningful differences in survey eligibility and participation among the sample. In addition, availability of an email address was highly predictive of screener response. For organization list strata, adjustment cells were formed based on the combination of sampling stratum and presence of an email address. For the CDSF frame, adjustment cells were based solely on sampling stratum. Cells that were less than 30 in sample size were combined with other cells to assure sufficient sample size for conducting this adjustment.

For the full sample weighting process, the adjustment cells were formed similarly to the main sample process, based on sampling strata and presence of an email address, while separate groups of strata were formed for the main and supplemental samples. Note, the supplemental sample had different levels of eligibility for and cooperation with the survey due to the email-only recruitment.

Specifically, the resulting weight at this stage for household b in adjustment cell C was calculated as:

where I_j^{SC} is a 1/0 indicator for whether a household completed the screener, I_j^{KE} is an indicator for whether a household has known eligibility but did not complete the screener, I_j^{UE} indicates that the household's eligibility for the screener is unknown, and I_j^{KI} indicates that the household is known to be ineligible for the screener.

Generalized Raking to Population Totals

The weights for all households that completed the screener were then adjusted to match population estimates from external data sources using a generalized raking procedure. As the external estimates included both household-level and person-level information for adults 18 and older and because person-level information was reflected in the household-level dataset as count variables, a generalized raking procedure was implemented that incorporated both binary household-level and count person-level variables.⁸ The following describes the population estimates used for adjustment in the raking procedure.

American Community Survey estimates on the overall 18+ population in Greater Los Angeles were used regarding:

- Age and educational background combinations (18 to 34 year old non-college graduates, 35 to 64 year old non-college graduates, 65 years and old non-college graduates, 18 to 34 year old college graduates, 35 to 64 year old college graduates, 65 years and old college graduates);
- Sex (male, female);
- Race/ethnicity (White non-Hispanic, Other non-Hispanic, Hispanic);
- Geographic regions (Central/Metro/Mid, East Valley, North County Valleys, South Bay, West Valley, and Westside).

In addition, American Jewish Population Project estimates on the overall 18+ Jewish by religion population in the six-county area were used regarding:

- Age and educational background combinations (18 to 34 year old non-college graduates, 35 to 64 year old non-college graduates, 65 years and old non-college graduates, 18 to 34 year old college graduates, 35 to 64 year old college graduates, 65 years and old college graduates);

- Sex (male, female);
- Race/ethnicity (White non-Hispanic, Other non-Hispanic, Hispanic);
- Geographic regions (Central/Metro/Mid, East Valley, North County Valleys, South Bay, West Valley, and Westside).

See below for more information on the development of the American Jewish Population Project estimates.

Further, information available for the Greater Los Angeles Jewish community was used in raking adjustments regarding:

- The number of households with dues-paying synagogue memberships to Orthodox, Conservative, Reform, and other synagogues;
- The number of children enrolled in Jewish preschool, Jewish day school, and Jewish part-time school;
- The number of households with subscriptions to PJ Library; and
- The number of households donating to JFGLA.

The resulting weight was w_{3i} .

Adjustment for Interview Nonresponse

The data were subsetted to only Jewish households eligible for the main interview. Not all households eligible for the main interview proceeded to complete it. Like the adjustment for screener response, cells were formed to adjust the weights for interview nonresponse based on either (a) sampling strata and presence of an email address alone for the main sample weighting process or (b) sampling strata and presence of an email address combined with sample type (main or supplemental) for the full sample weighting process. Cells that were less than 30 in sample size were combined with other cells to assure sufficient sample size for conducting this adjustment.

Specifically, the resulting weight at this stage for household b in adjustment cell C was calculated as:

$$w_{4i} = w_{3i} \left(\frac{\sum_{j \in C} w_{3j} [I_j^{IC} + I_j^{IN}]}{\sum_{j \in C} w_{3j} I_j^{IC}} \right),$$ where I_j^{IC} is a 1/0 indicator for whether a household completed the interview, I_j^{IN} is an indicator for whether a household was an interview incomplete that was determined eligible for the main interview.

Trimming and Final Raking for Household-Level Weight

To reduce the influence of observations with large weights on study estimates, weights were trimmed. The trimming reallocated the weights so the sum of the weights among all interview completes was the same before and after trimming.

Because weight trimming causes estimates to deviate from known information on the Greater Los Angeles Jewish population, trimming and raking steps were conducted iteratively. Generalized raking steps incorporated the following data:

- A series of unbiased survey estimates based on using survey weight w_{3i} , including estimates of Jewish by religion adults, all Jewish adults, children in Jewish households, the number of married/partnered households with two Jewish partners, and the number of married/partnered households with one Jewish and one non-Jewish partner;
- The number of overall dues-paying synagogue members;
- Enrollment in Jewish preschool, Jewish day school, and Jewish part-time school;
- The number of households with subscriptions to PJ Library; and
- The number of households donating to JFGLA.

The resulting weight was $w_{HH,i}$.

Survey Weights for Analyses of Responding Adults

For each of the main and full samples, two additional survey weights were developed for analyses of characteristics of the adults responding to the survey within the household rather than of the full household. One weight was designed to support estimates regarding all adults living in Jewish households, and the second weight supports estimates regarding all Jewish adults.

Multiple raking dimensions were incorporated to align estimates with those based on the household-level weights, including:

- For all responding adults, estimates based on the household-level weights regarding the number of adults in Jewish households who are either Jewish by religion, Jewish of no religion, Jewish of multiple religions, or non-Jewish;
- For all Jewish responding adults, estimates based on the household-level weights regarding:
 - Dues-paying synagogue membership;
 - Enrollment of children in Jewish day school, Jewish part-time school, and Jewish preschool;
 - Donations to JFGLA;
 - PJ Library subscriptions;
 - Age group (18-34, 35-64, 65 and older);
 - Educational background (college graduate or not);
 - Denomination (Orthodox, Conservative, Reform, No denomination, Other denomination); and
 - The number of adults not married, married to a Jewish adult, or married to a non-Jewish adult.

After this raking step, weight trimming was conducted to avoid the influence of observations with large survey weights on survey estimates using the weights for responding adults.

The resulting weight $w_{r,i}$ is the respondent-level weight to support to estimates of adults in Jewish households when analyzing responding adults only.

Setting $w_{r,i}$ to 0 for non-Jewish responding adults yields $w_{rJ,i}$, the respondent-level weight to support to estimates of all Jewish adults when analyzing responding adults only.

Data Collection Outcomes

Table A3 summarizes data collection results. Results are presented for the overall main and full samples, and then separately for the combined organization list strata, predictive model strata, ABS remainder strata, and supplemental email sample. The AAPOR Response Rate 3 (RR3) is also presented unweighted, weighted by the main sample base weight, and weighted by the full sample base weight.

For the main sample, there were 3,012 completed interviews among 4,330 who completed the screener and lived in Greater Los Angeles. Completed interviews were defined as completing all questions on the roster of adults and children in the household. The final response rate was 11.2% unweighted and 10.2% weighted. When using the final household-level weight to analyze the main sample for all completed interviews, the design effect is 2.88 and the margin of error is +/- 3.0%.

For the full sample that included the supplemental email sample, there were 3,767 completed surveys among 5,164 households who completed the screener and live in Greater Los Angeles. The final response rate was 10.2% unweighted and 9.9% weighted. When using the final household-level weight to analyze the full sample for all completed interviews, the design effect is 3.50 and the margin of error is +/- 3.0%.

Final Population Estimates

Population numbers presented in the report were rounded so as to avoid overprecision – that is, the misleading implication that our estimates are correct down to the single digit.

The precise population estimates with 95% confidence intervals are shown in Table A4. For example, the best estimate of the total Jewish population is 564,729 people. Given the size of the sample and possible sampling and non-response error, we can be 95% confident that the true value lies somewhere between 530,453 people and 599,005 people.

American Jewish Population Project Estimates

Developing the Population Estimate through Data Synthesis

Since 2005, the American Jewish Population Project (AJPP) at the Steinhardt Social Research Institute (SSRI) has identified and collected hundreds of nationally representative surveys of the US population to produce estimates of the Jewish population in the United States, its states, metropolitan areas, and counties (or groups of counties). These estimates provide an independent, external reference for the basic demographic profile of the Jewish population. This population profile serves as a point of reference for the community as a whole and for those who conduct targeted surveys of the population and have no frame of reference for evaluating the representativeness of their survey sample. Details of the methods are reported elsewhere.⁹

The data synthesis method demonstrates how an auxiliary data source can be constructed to provide independent, census-like estimates of the size and characteristics of the adult Jewish by religion (JBR) population in the U.S. at the county level.¹⁰ These estimates of the adult JBR population may then be used to generate new post-stratification weights. These new post-stratification weights are then applied to the targeted study of the Jewish population.

Summary of Data

The full sample of surveys in the AJPP dataset consists of data from surveys of nationally representative random samples of the adult population in the U.S. conducted between 1997 and 2020. The dataset includes surveys identified in major data repositories, such as the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) and the American Religion Data Archive (ARDA), as well as in poll archives at the Roper Center, Gallup, and Pew Research Center. Surveys include the American National Election Studies, Pew Political and social surveys, Gallup Daily Tracking poll, the Cooperative Congressional Election Study (CCES) and other surveys. The dataset includes more than 1,200 independent samples and a total combined sample size of more than 2.9 million respondents, of whom over 69,000 identify as Jewish by religion. Where a single survey may have included multiple sampling methods or frames (e.g., landline versus cellphone), each is treated as a separate independent sample, with unique identifiers to indicate series membership.¹¹ For surveys that included oversamples, only the representative portion of the samples were included in the analyses.

All of the surveys in the sample provide data on those who identify as Jewish by religion (JBR), which is the largest proportion of the Jewish population and therefore serves as the baseline group for generating population estimates. A smaller number of surveys include assessment of religious upbringing or parents' religious/ethnic identification, or non-religious Jewish identification (for instance, "Do you consider yourself Jewish?") in addition to current religious affiliation.¹²

The present report is based on a custom analysis for the 2022 Los Angeles Jewish Community Study. The analysis includes data from a subset of 266 national samples that were conducted between the years 2015 and 2019. A few additional surveys are included for the years 2014 and 2020 to increase the sample size, with the assumption that the size and characteristics of the Jewish population does not change substantially in this time period. The subset sample includes just over 36,800 respondents in the Los Angeles area. Of these, 21,200 were in the Los Angeles Jewish Community Study target area (see description below). In addition to religious identification, all of the surveys in the custom analysis include the following baseline demographic information for respondents: gender, race, educational attainment, age, and ZIP Code.

Modeling

¹¹ Series identification is included in the dataset to be able to examine differences across surveys that can be accounted for by survey series.

¹² Currently there are too few surveys of representative samples of all U.S. adults that include alternative methods of Jewish identification. Thus, the present analyses focus on the JBR population only.

The full model includes seven categories of age (18-24; 25-34; 35-44; 45-54; 55-64; 65-74, 75+), three categories of race and ethnicity (Non-Hispanic White; Hispanic; Non-Hispanic Other), two categories of sex (Male/Female), and two categories of educational attainment (Non-College / College).

The lowest level of geography available for analysis was the ZIP Code of the respondent. For the purpose of analysis, ZIP Codes were converted to ZIP Code Tabulation Areas (ZCTAs). The Los Angeles Jewish Community Study area included in the model is comprised of 247 ZCTAs located in Los Angeles and Ventura counties.

There were two few observations within ZCTAs to reliably estimate single ZCTAs. ZCTAs were, therefore, clustered into regions based on their proximity, population density, and Jewish population incidence¹³. The model includes 13 ZCTA clusters within six regions that correspond to the regions in the Los Angeles Jewish Community Study (see description and map of these areas below), two ZCTA clusters that correspond to the regions in the 2022 Long Beach Jewish Community Study, and five ZCTA clusters that correspond to areas of Los Angeles, Orange, and Ventura Counties that are not located within the two community studies' catchment areas. For modeling purposes, ZCTA clusters were nested into eight 'hyper-clusters' based on prior information of Jewish incidence such that clusters expected to be low or near zero Jewish population were grouped separately from areas expected to be high in Jewish incidence.

The model is displayed below, where the outcome variable, y_i , represents the Jewish identification of the respondent (yes/no), for $i = 1, \dots, \text{total number of respondents}$.

Jewish Population Estimates

Results from the model provide overall population estimates as well as estimates of the distribution of Jews by demographic characteristics for the six regions areas in the Los Angeles area.

The overall estimate of the adult population who identify as Jewish by religion in the Los Angeles area is 320,500 corresponding to 5.8% of the adult population in the same area. The distributions within the adult Jewish population varied by age, education, gender and race as well as by geography. Table A5 presents this information.

Bias and Limitations

The study team made every effort to field a representative sample of the Greater Los Angeles Jewish population to assure the quality of estimates, including developing a comprehensive sampling frame, collecting survey data by web and telephone, and conducting nonresponse follow-up. Nonetheless, there are limitations. Certain subgroups of the area Jewish population may be less likely to respond to the survey than others. Statistical adjustments used in the survey weighting process commonly assume that after adjusting for certain variables, the characteristics of responding and nonresponding households are similar. However, this assumption may not always hold, which may lead to bias for estimates. In addition, changes in the population occurring between sample frame development and the data collection period may not be fully reflected in estimates. Because of this, newcomers to the community may be underestimated.

SECTION B. ANALYSIS

All analyses were completed using statistical software Stata, version 17. Unless otherwise noted, all analyses were restricted to Jewish households (in which at least one adult was Jewish) as well as individual Jewish adults and Jewish children who were specifically identified by respondents as being Jewish. Analyses of characteristics of the entire population were based only on the primary sample with appropriate weights applied. All analyses of subgroups or subsets of the population were conducted using the full sample with appropriate weights applied.

Qualitative Coding

The survey included a set of open-ended questions that supported write-in responses rather than multiple choice. Responses were coded by CMJS/SSRI staff and student research assistants, with at least two researchers coding each question.

Coders were trained to ensure intercoder reliability, stability, and accuracy. Their work was reviewed on an ongoing basis for quality control. Difficult cases were marked for review by supervisors.

Coding was conducted both deductively and inductively. For each question, coders were given a set of categories to look for in the responses; these categories were based on those used for similar questions from previous studies. However, coders were also instructed to watch for emerging patterns. When a coder believed that a new pattern of responses existed within the data, they reviewed their findings with a supervisor who decided whether the new pattern warranted a new code. When a new code was created, the coders reviewed previously coded entries to check whether the new code would apply to them.

Index of Jewish Engagement

Latent Class Analysis (LCA) is a method (Henry & Lazarsfeld, 1968)¹⁷ for uncovering the latent dimensions that explain the associations between categorical variables. It is a statistical method that is designed to identify latent variables. Latent variables are hypothesized variables of interest that cannot be measured directly in a dataset but are measured indirectly through variables that can be included (observed or manifest variables). As an illustration, “Jewish engagement” cannot be measured directly on a survey, but it is the latent variable of interest for the present study (Aronson et al., 2018¹⁸).

Unlike factor analysis, a more frequently utilized method of cluster analysis, the goal of LCA is to identify classifications of people rather than groups of variables or characteristics. The latent variable for LCA is a categorical variable representing multiple classes or types of people. Each individual is assumed to be a member of only one class. The LCA method assigns, for each case in the dataset, a probability that the case is a member of each class. This assignment is based on the pattern of responses to the observed variables used in the analysis. An excellent explanation of these techniques can be found at <http://nap.edu/18623> (Institute of Medicine 2014)¹⁹. The present study uses a modern version of LCA, a Stata plugin, to estimate the latent classes (Lanza et al., 2015)²⁰.

Latent class analysis works with the patterns and attempts to group them in such a way that within each group, called a class, there is no association between the items. The latent class is called latent because, although it is actually not in the variable set, it accounts for the associations between the manifest variables in the same way that a third variable can account for the observed association between two variables. In the classic example of a nonsensical statement, “The more firemen at a fire, the greater the damage,” the association is accounted for by a third variable—the size of the fire. The greater the fire, the more firemen; the greater the fire, the more damage. In technical terms, this is called “local independence,” which is also an assumption of factor analysis. The goal of completely accounting for the associations is rarely met, in part because there are so many empty cells, as well as the messiness of real data. Rather, the method tries to find through iterative fitting the right number of classes and relationship between them that minimizes the discrepancy between a perfect fit and the actual data.

To develop an index of Jewish engagement for the present report, 19 items were used to represent the range of Jewish behaviors (Table B.1.) These items were selected to include ritual, communal, and cultural behaviors, as well as public and private behaviors. In all cases when items had more than two possible response levels, responses were dichotomized with the cutoff based on the distribution of responses in the original variable. After conducting the latent class analysis, a five-class solution was identified.

Latent Class Analysis was conducted in Stata version 17 using a user-developed LCA Stata Plugin developed by the Methodology Center at Penn State (Lanza et al., 2015)²¹. Solutions were examined for up to nine classes, as shown in Figure B.1. The five-class solution was selected as the point where the goodness-of-fit measures “level off,” that is, improvement by adding more classes begin to decline. In addition, the five-class solution made intuitive sense. As in factor analysis, the number of classes, like the number of factors, is partly a matter of theory and intuition and the labels for the classes and factors are given by the analyst and are not in the data themselves. In addition to various indexes of fit, the output of the Stata program among other matters shows the size of the classes, the probability that a particular indicator would be endorsed by a member of a particular class, and the limits of confidence for the various parameters. The output is voluminous and not presented in this report. As is the case with factor analysis, the names of the classes were developed by researchers to characterize the distinguishing behaviors of each class.

Table B.1 shows the conditional response probabilities for each behavior in the LCA analysis with the five-class solution. The first row of the table shows the probability of a random respondent being categorized in each of the five classes. The remaining rows show the conditional response probability of each behavior: the probability that a randomly selected member of a class will exhibit the given behavior. For example, for those in the class we called “Communal,” the estimated probability of attending a seder was 82% as compared with 98% for those labelled “Immersed.”

NOTE: This table shows than conditional probabilities as estimated by the LCA algorithm, not weighted proportions of class membership and of each behavior within the dataset.

SUBJECT: You're invited! Participate in the Jewish LA Study today!
BODY:

Study of Jewish Los Angeles

Dear <>FIRST_NAME<> <>LAST_NAME<>,

Your voice matters. Make sure you are represented by taking part in the Study of Jewish Los Angeles (SJLA)!

A survey invitation is on the way to you in the mail – you may have already received it. While the mail may be on the way, you can start the survey right now!

This survey will study the diverse needs and interests of the Jewish community in the Los Angeles and Ventura County area to inform the work of local Jewish organizations.

Brandeis University and NORC at the University of Chicago, an independent research organization, are partnering to conduct this study, which is sponsored by the Jewish Federation of Greater Los Angeles. Any information you provide is completely confidential. Your individual responses will not be shared outside of the research team at NORC and Brandeis, and you will not be asked to donate money. Any adult living at your address can complete the survey.

Get started today by clicking on the link below and entering access code: <Access Code>.

Your experiences and perspective matter to us. Our goal is to have a large, diverse cross section of Jewish households in the Los Angeles and Ventura County area take part in this study. If we don't hear from you, we may call you in the next few weeks to complete the survey. The call will come from NORC at the University of Chicago, (312) 871-4270.

If you have questions, please email SJLA@norc.org or call (877) 777-5454. You can also learn more by visiting SJLA.norc.org. If you would like to speak with someone from the Jewish Federation, please visit <https://www.JewishLA.org/Study>, contact Mara Saliman at Study@JewishLA.org, or call (323) 761-8383.

Please complete the survey soon. Thank you for taking part in this important research.

Sincerely,

Janet Krasner Aronson, PhD
Assistant Research Professor

Dear {CITY} Community Member,

Your voice matters, now more than ever. Your community needs to hear from you. The past year has been challenging, and local organizations need information from our community members to plan for future programs and services. Share your opinion and represent your community by taking part in the LASpeaks! community survey. We are surveying adults in the Los Angeles and Ventura County area about a number of issues facing them to inform the work of local organizations.

It's easy to complete the survey!

1. Visit LASpeaks.norc.org or call (877) 777-5454
2. Enter your survey access code: #####
3. Complete the survey— if you need to step away, you can exit and re-enter the survey where you left off

Brandeis University is partnering with NORC at the University of Chicago, an independent research institution, to conduct this study. Your household has been selected to represent other households like yours in Los Angeles and Ventura Counties. Any information you provide is completely confidential. Your individual responses will not be shared outside of the research team at Brandeis and NORC. Any adult living at your address can complete the survey.

Your participation is important to us. Our goal is to have the diverse communities of the Los Angeles and Ventura County area represented. If we don't hear from you, we may call you in the next few weeks to complete the survey. The call will come from NORC at the University of Chicago, (312) 871-4270.

June 2021

Dear {NAME},

Your voice matters, now more than ever. The past year has been incredibly challenging for many, and local Jewish organizations need information from our community members to best plan for the future.

Make sure your views are heard by taking part in the Study of Jewish Los Angeles (SJLA)! This survey will focus on the diverse needs and interests of the Jewish community in Los Angeles and Ventura Counties to inform the work of local Jewish organizations. We have included a $2 bill as a small token of appreciation for completing the survey.

Brandeis University is partnering with NORC at the University of Chicago, an independent research institution, to conduct this study, which is made possible by the Jewish Federation of Greater Los Angeles and other local funders. Any information you provide is completely confidential. Your individual responses will not be shared outside of the research team at Brandeis and NORC, and you will not be asked to donate money during the survey or as a result of your participation. Any adult living at your address can complete the survey.

It's easy to complete the survey!

1. Visit SJLA.norc.org or call (877) 777-5454
2. Enter your survey access code: #####
3. Complete the 20-30 minute survey – if needed, you can exit and re-enter the survey where you left off

Your experiences and perspective matter to us. Our goal is to have a large, diverse cross section of Jewish households in LA and Ventura Counties take part in this study. If we don't hear from you, we may call in the next few weeks to request that you complete the survey. The call will come from NORC at the University of Chicago, (312) 871-4270.

If you have questions, please email SJLA@norc.org or call (877) 777-5454. For more information, visit SJLA.norc.org. If you would like to speak with someone from the Jewish Federation, please visit <https://www.JewishLA.org/Study>, contact Mara Saliman at Study@JewishLA.org, or call (323) 761-8383.

Thank you for taking part in this important research and completing the survey as soon as possible.

Sincerely,

Janet K. Aronson, PhD
